HOT ISSUE

J-Hope will be next BTS member to begin military service

J-Hope will be the second member of boy band BTS to start his military service.

The singer's agency BigHit Music said Sunday through the fan community app Weverse that he has canceled his enlistment postponement request to the government and will start his 2-year service as soon as a date is set.

"We will inform you with related information as it comes," the company said in the notice.

"We hope for your unwavering love and support until J-Hope finishes his duty and comes back, and we also promise to give our utmost support to the artist."

J-Hope, whose real name is Jeong Ho-seok, was born in February 1994 and debuted in 2013 as the singer and rapper of BTS. He is well known for his fluid dance skills and bright and friendly personality on television and in press interviews.

He will be the second member to enlist, following Jin, the oldest member of the group whose real name is Kim Seok-jin, who started his service last December.

KQ Entertainment's new ten-member boy band named Xikers

KQ Entertainment's new boy band will be called Xikers, announced the agency on Friday. The agency is most famous for boy band Ateez which debuted in 2018.

The name of the boy band, Xikers, is a combination of "x" used to represent the horizontal coordinates and "hikers", which means the "members of the boy band are finding the coordinates to travel through time and space," explained the agency. The exact dates of the band's official debut have not been revealed yet.

Originally known as the KQ Fellaz 2, the boy band consisting of Minjae, Junmin, Sumin, Jinsik, Hyunwoo, Junghoon, Seeun, Hunter, Yujun and Yechan were first introduced in the SBS program "The Player- K-Pop Quest" (2022), a show revolved around the ten-members receiving training prior to debut. The band also participated in KCON 2022 Japan, performing boy band NCT 127's 2020 hit "Kick It."

Xikers will also perform during the Thai leg of KCON 2023 on March 18.

Cha Eun-woo promises a more exciting new season of 'Island'

Actor Cha Eun-woo wants audiences of the series “Island,” in which he stars, to understand that his character Yohan is a special kind of priest, certainly not immune to his own problems.

Despite the star-studded cast of the latest Tving and Amazon Prime series, the reception of the handsome Vatican-bred Korean priest from both domestic and global viewers has been lukewarm. Lead actor Cha is intent on turning that around in the second season with a deeper portrayal of his character Yohan, who questions not only his mission but also that of God.

Surprises are to be expected in Part 2 of the series, to be released later this month, according to Cha, but it remains to be seen whether the series will make a turnaround from its lackluster performance on the streaming charts.

Because there is a scene at the end of Part 1 of “Island” in which Yohan had to terminate a brotherly character with his own hands, Cha was emotionally invested during filming, according to the actor.

“I am always looking for challenges and more roles where I can show what Cha Eun-woo can do,” said Cha. “I think bringing my own color to the characters I play is an important quality in acting. ‘Island’ was also a new challenge for me, and I hope to show the viewers and my fans what I can achieve further.”

Part 2 of “Island” can be streamed on Tving and Amazon Prime starting Feb. 24.
